Since the 1970s, the iconic American grizzly bear—a national symbol of wildness and the American West—has been shielded from extinction by the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Short-sighted politicians are pushing to strip away protections that have brought the grizzly bear back from the brink.

Whether you live in grizzly country or a thousand miles away, your voice matters. Congress is playing politics with the future of grizzlies and all endangered species right now. And they need to hear from you.
